Monthly Indicators

February 2009

Area breakouts of 28 submarkets begin after page 15.

New listings are still quite a bit down from last year's numbers, coming in at 2,753 for February, down 19.3 percent. Pending sales, however, are increasing, up over 10 percent from last February. Unfortunately, the 1,140 pending sales this February are still 32.1 percent lower than two years ago.

Days on Market Until Sale sits at 114 in February, up 3.8 percent from February of last year and up substantially from the numbers seen in the earlier years of this decade.

Thanks to declining sales prices and low interest rates the overall Housing Affordability Index has jumped upward 14.6 percent from last year to 156. This is markedly higher than just two years ago, and combines with the recent announcement of an $8,000 federal tax credit for first time home buyers to create an environment that screams out for buyers. While prices may be stagnating, the pool of eligible buyers is thankfully increasing.
